

New materials, obtained from wastes glass using a ceramic method

Amelia Elena Balan
National Glass Institute

The novelty in the obtaining of this materials are the forming method, aqueous slurries composition and the rate of heat treatment.

The aqueous slurries adequate to the forming technology by spilling in gypsum shapes should present special reological characteristics and low content of disperser liquid.

This kind of materials can be used for obtaining tableware and for decoration.